Another nevelist who is making ready a new book is Mrs. Craigie (John Oliver Hobbes). She is working in the Isle of Wight, M. Rosny, the French novelist, is translating her story "The

In Germany last year 28,878 books were published. Of this number only 8,954 volumes were ranked as "belles lettres." Fiction was included under this head. The output is not so astonishing as it seems, for pamphlets and university leaflets are reckoned as books in the list.

Apropos of Charles Dickens's work, the Lor don "Academy" notes that he had many things temporarily in his favor, "not the least of which was that he employed his novels as vehicles for the conveyance of political and moral les-

It was a time when the idea of self-improvement was in the air, and people lost sight of the elementary truth that if literature be a faithful mirror of life it will teach exactly what life teaches and no more. At the moment when the writer becomes conscious of a moral purpose he ceases to achieve it, because the very fact leads to distortion and consequent falsehood. To picture life truly, to set forth in an undying record the true and genuine impression that it has made in his own mind, is the only right ambition of the artist. It may possibly end in fallure after all, and will assuredly do so unless the writer be possessed of clear insight to begin with. Should he take any fantastic or distorted view of life, that will inevitably be apparent in his work and render it of less worth than it would otherwise have been. Thus, high motive is not in itself any guarantee of greatness.

The Rev. E. J. Hardy's book, "How To Be Happy Though Married," had a great vogue in its day, and those who remember it may be tempted to try his new book, "My Life Among the Chinese," In this he describes his expeas as a British chaplain in Hong Kong.

"The Burlesque Napoleon" is the title of a ohume in which Mr. Philip W. Sergeant tells the story of Jerome, the amiable weakling of Westphalia. There are few scenes in history that ere more comic than that in which Jerome, aged twenty-three, dressed in white silk and purple mantle, with plumes and diamonds on his empty head, exhorted his legislators to work in concert with him, "I as king and father, you as faithful and affectionate subjects."

Here is a wholesome judgment from "The Athensum," pronounced concerning a novel whose characters can mostly be identified with real persons: "Close portraiture of the kind is both bad art and bad manners."

"The Coming Church; a Plea for a Church Simply Christian," is the significant title of a book by Dr. John Hunter, one of the most powerful preachers of British Congregationalism. It is to be brought out almost immediately.

Mr. Maarten Maartens's new long novel is not to appear until after he has published a book of short stories.

A valuable contribution to legal literature, and also to that of Spanish-American history, has just been made in the publication by the Isthmian Canal Commission of an English translation of the Civil Code of the Republic of Panama and Amendatory Laws. This is the code which was put into force by the fourth decree of the Provisional Government of Panama on November 4, 1903, and which was continued in force in the Canal Zone by executive order of May 9, 1904. Its practical value to all who may visit or have dealings with the isthmus is therefore apparent. Its historical interest, as a derivative from the Colombian Civil Code, which, in turn, was a derivative of Spanish and Roman law, is likewise great. The translation has been made with accuracy and discretion by Mr. Frank L. Joannini, of the War Department at Washington, under the direction of Judge Magoon, formerly general member of the commission and Governor of the Canal Zone. It is especially reassuring to those who may make professional use of the work that Mr. Joannini has scrupulously avoided anything like making interpretations of law instead of translations, but has always aimed at an accurate rendering of the letter and spirit of the original, even at the risk, sometimes, of sacrifloing what might be called good English to fidelity to the Spanish text. Such sacrifices are few, however, and the whole well printed and minutely indexed work may be regarded as creditable to its translator in a high degree.

Even if the theories advanced by Thomson, Rutherford and other physicists to account for the phenomena of radio activity are not yet generally accepted, they are profoundly interesting; and many people besides professional devotees of science find them fascinating. Hence there has been a need of an exposition of them intelligible to a man of average education. In "The New Knowledge" (A. S. Barnes & Co.), Professor Robert Kennedy Duncan has sought to supply that demand. Some of his material. the story of Lockyer's researches into the dissociation of elements in the sun, for instance, is rather old, but it has a logical connection with Ramsay's conjectures about the possibility of transmutation. It is to be wished that, since Professor Duncan saw fit to mention the recent demonstrations of the pressure of light, he had seen fit to recognize the significance of Crookes's radiometer. One of his phrases, "inter-atomic energy," is open to criticism, too. That expression signifies forces at work between different atoms, whereas the writer refers to play of forces inside a single atom. "Intraatomic" or "inter-corpuscular" would have been better. However, in spite of these trifling faults, the net result of his work is admirable. He has presented in a single volume facts and hypotheses which until now could be found only in several, some of the latter being reports of society proceedings which are inaccessible to the laity. Moreover, his recital is characterized by a high degree of accuracy. Professor Duncan writes with enthusiasm, but it is not likely that he will mislead his readers.

NEED FOR LIFE SAVERS IN SUMMER.

Crews of Stations on Long Island Coast Said

To Be Willing to Serve All the Year. Eastport, Long Island, June 8 (Special) .- The recent stranding of the Caucus, near Long Beach, when the absence of the life saving grows prevenied the offering of immediate assistance to the imperilled sallors, has suggested forcibly the necessity of maintaining the full number of men in the stations during the summer months. In June and July, under the present regulations, only the cap-tains of the various stations remain on duty. The members of the crews are apparently unanimous in the desire to remain on the beach the whole year, and the present agitation is expected to pro-duce early results.

FATHER DELVEAUX DIES.

Street Accident Proves Fatal-Alleged Vision in Church,

The Rev. Ignatius Delveaux, one of the most prominent German priests of the Roman Catholic Church in this city, died yesterday morning at the parish house of the Church of St. Boniface, No. 403 East 47th-st., from blood poisoning, which followed a streetcar accident. On May 24 Father Delveaux was returning to the parish house from Harlem, where he had been calling on friends. He left a Second-ave. car at 47th-st., and started across the street to the church. He did not notice a northbound car, which was speeding down the hill from 65th-st., until it was upon him. The fender of the car struck him and rolled him into the gut ter. One of his feet was crushed and twisted and there was a bad cut over his eye. An ambulance surgeon dressed his wounds, and the priest hobbled

"Let the motorman go free," were the words Father Delveaux sent to the police. "He did not mean to harm me."

It was not long until blood poisoning set in, and the attending physician said to the priest: "I can probably save your life by amputating your foo 'You must not do that," said the priest. "I could o longer exercise priestly functions."

In vain his friends assured him that it would be possible to get a special dispensation from Rome. They cited the case of Father Martin, of the Order They cited the case of Father Martin, of the Order of Jesuits, who lost a finger in an accident some years ago, and secured a special dispensation.

For several days hundreds of the congregation have gathered in the little red brick church to pray for his recovery. On Tuesday afternoon several young girls who were praying there declared that suddenly the altar was bathed in a white light, and that in the midst of the glow an angel hovered for an instant and then disappeared. The girls hurried around to the parish house and told one of the priests what they had seen. The priest told them their imagination was playing a trick on them. The girls were not satisfied, and spread the report of a vision through the district.

"It means that the dear father is going to get well," they declared, and many believed and rejoiced.

Father Delyeaux was born in Germany fifty.

Joloed.

Father Delveaux was born in Germany fifty-eight years ago, and had been in America thirty-three years. He had served as assistant pastor at St. Joseph's Church, in 12th-st.; at Rondout, N. Y., and at a country chapel in Sullivan County, For eighteen years he had been the pastor at St. Boniface's, and had done much to spread the Catholic faith among the German residents of the East Side. The funeral will be held from the ohurch on next Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

GIRL'S DEATH MYSTERY.

Body Found in Lake That Was Surrounded by High Fence.

Considerable mystery surrounds the manner in which Miss Hilds Johnson, a Swedish maid, employed by Mrs. Eliza Frazier, of Barker-ave., White Plains, got into a lake on the estate of Fred Lewis at Tarrytown, where her body was found early yesterday. Miss Johnson disappeared on May 30 while walking around White Plains, and though the police of Westchester County searched for her they could get no trace.

The woman had evidently been dead a week. The body was partly decomposed, and it was impossi ble to tell whether there were any wounds on it. ble to tell whether there were any wounds on it.

The police of White Plains say that Miss Johnson had been involved in some love affair, and had been suffering from melancholia for some time. Others are inclined to the theory that the girl committed suicide in a fit of despondency over poor health. To reach the lake the girl had to climb a fence, but there were no signs of footprints around the fence or around the edge of the lake.

PURE MILK SUPPLY, AID.

New Organization of Dealers Elects Board of Trustees.

The Association for the Improvement of the Milk Supply of New-York held its first executive meeting yesterday afternoon at the City Club, No. 55 West 44th-st., and selected a board of twentyone trustees to look after its interests. It is composed of about fifty milk firms, and was organized a few weeks ago. Dr. E. J. Lederle, former Health Commissioner, is its consulting chemist.

The association is working in harmony with the Board of Health, and the expectation is that infant mortality will be lessened as the result of its activities. The officers of the association will have sanitary supervision over the men who deliver milk in the city, and over dairies, creameries and shipping stations through which milk has to pass before it reaches its destination.

It is not the purpose of the association to regu-late the price of milk, as it has only to do with the quality of the supply. It was decided at the meeting of the executive committee yesterday to admit to membership firms interested in indus-tries allied to the milk supply.

ARMY AND NAVY NEWS.

[FROM THE TRIBUNE BUREAU.]

received at the Navy Department indicate that the new naval hospital at Canacao, in the Philippines, is crowded to its capacity with the sick and wounded Russian sallors whose ships sought refuge in Manila Bay after the fight with Togo. This new hospital was opened on March 14, and has a capacity of 120 beds. Of course, the authorities will keep account of the cost of maintaining the refugees, but it is doubtful if the State Department ever acknowledges to the St. Petersburg authorities that the Russian government is in any way indebted to American institutions. The same rule is maintained at Mare Island, where some Russian sallors are staying, receiving subsistence and hospital attendance when ill.
